ABOUT ORGANISER :

Bionano Frontier Scientific Society: Bionano Frontier Scientific Society, Mumbai established in 2009 and registered society. The members of BNF actively involved in academic and scientific activities pertaining to education, training and research development.

The chief objective of the society is to promote the science and technology at grass root level. The society collaborates with various educational institutes including Universities and NGOs for organization of the conferences on various important issues pertaining to science and technologies. Since establishment the society has organized more than 45 National and International Conferences in association with internationally reputed Institutes and NGO's.

Most important issues pertaining to global warming are vigorously being discussed in BNF meetings. An environmental conservation is not just planting saplings and creating wild life sanctuaries, BNF think that all living organisms should live happily. BNF wants to create mass awareness about the environment amongst the people and an unrelenting action towards sustainable development. Therefore BNF arranges mass environmental programs that involve all kind of people, provide the platform for sharing knowledge and training of global environmental problems,and finding their solutions without considering boundaries of nations, states, regions, religions and languages. Our foundation gives channel for peoples aspirations through our various programs; hence our campaigns focus on their holistic development. For this purpose we have formed various cells having members with excellent academic background in their respective fields.

BNF understands the importance of river conservation for Ecological balance of that Foundation taking vital initiative for framing river policy in various countries through National/International conference.

Bionano Frontier is one of the prestigious Scientific Journal published by society. It is a half yearly a peer reviewed scientific research journal. It has been Indexed/cited in various National and International scientific databases and obtained impact factor (4.856). The journal has been published in both forms i.e. print and online (print ISSN 0974-0678 and Online 2320-9593). A number of national and International scientist and author have contributed to this journal. The Journal brings out various special issues on the national and international scientific events.

Bionano Frontier has organized many National and International scientific program in India and Abroad (Srilanka, Bangkok and Dubai). These meetings were highly successful.
